COMPARISON OF PUNCH CARD

VS.

PAPER BALLOT

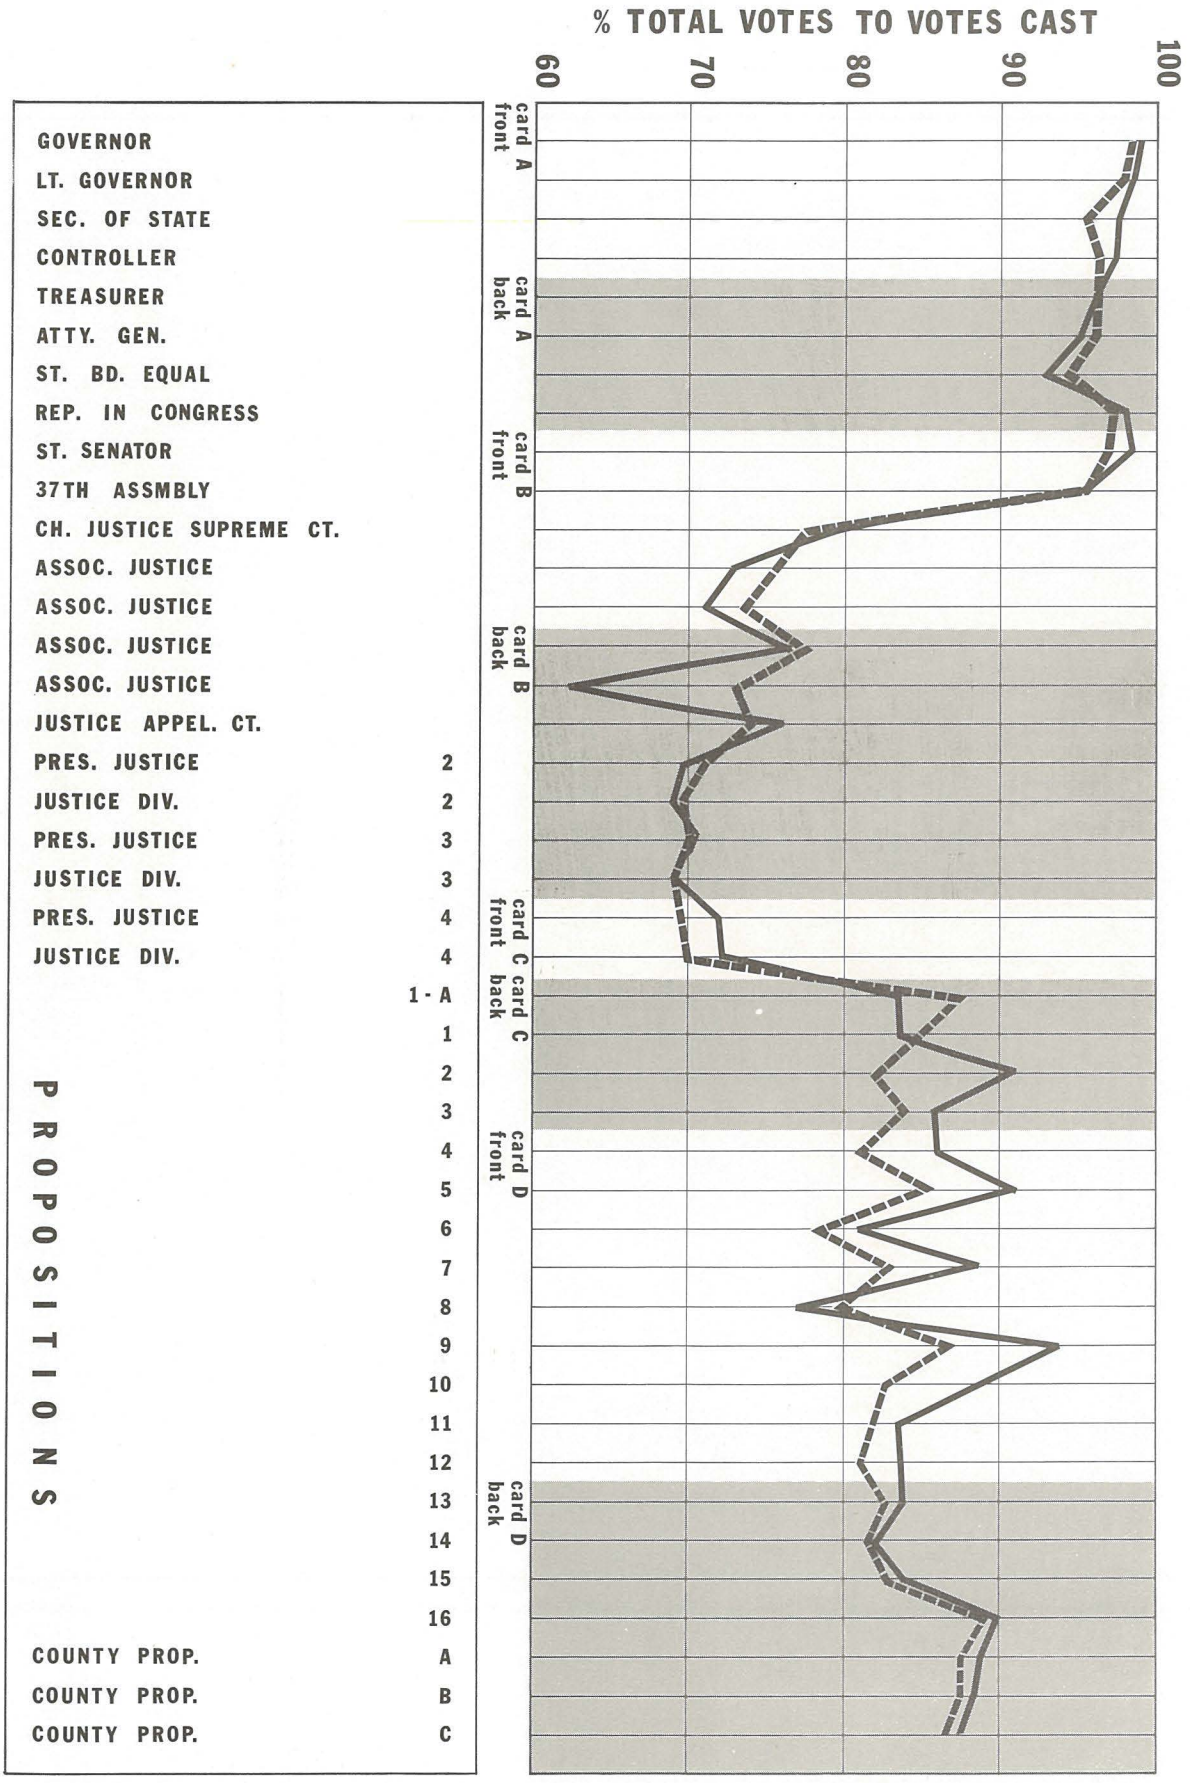

COMPARISON OF PUNCH CARD VS. PAPER BALLOT

The graphs on the following pages indicate the voting patterns where both the punch card and the paper ballot were used in an election. The graph on page 106 reflects the 1966 General Election in Ventura County, California, where the punch card was used for absentee voting and the paper ballot was used on election day. The graph on page 107 reflects the 1968 General Election in Hawaii County where the punch card was used in the Hilo area and the paper ballot was used in the rest of the county.

The punch card ballots had races printed on both faces, whereas, the paper ballots had printing on one face only. An analysis of both graphs seems to indicate that the voters voted much more in the races that interested them. And that pattern seems to hold whether the voter used the punch card or the paper ballot, or whether the races were printed on the front or the back face of a punch card ballot.
